It looks as though our rainy season was going to make a clean sweep of it and take in the whole year.

The editor of McClure's Magazine thinks that if hoodlums were called thieves and grafting was called stealing much good would be done. In other words he would call a spade a spade.

Carthage has natural gas. This is getting pretty close to the top and we hope the day is not far off when Jasper can enjoy this great convenience. That is where Jasper falls down, on the lighting proposition.

"Uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." The Czar evidently realizes this more than any body else right now. Is there a man in Jasper who would trade places with the Emperor of all the Russias? We believe not.

The Topeka Mail and Breeze figures out that one-fourteenth of a cent from each inhabitant of the United States would pay the duty on Miss Roosevelt's presents. It further says it will pay for fourteen citizens. You can count us in for fourteen shares also.

Carthage footballists are inclined to find fault with the Jasper boys for refusing to pay all of their expenses to this city last week, but in view of the fact that the expenses footed up about $25 more than was really necessary Jasper cannot be blamed for having balked.

While we are talking about officers doing their duty, let us remind you that Jasper has a marshal that does things. Our private opinion publicly expressed is that the next football contingent coming from the county will walk more circumspectly on their next visit to Jasper.

How different are the various roads to fame. Some achieve fame on the battlefield, others in halls of legislation and others in the realm of business, and a monument was dedicated in Nebraska last week to honor the man who started the custom of setting apart a certain day for the planting of trees.

The Signs Of The Times.

If we read the signs of the times aright, from now on the two great political parties are going to assume a different attitude on the liquor question. Not because they want to but because they cannot help themselves.

Heretofore it has been the policy of these two parties to be as mum as a closed oyster on this one of the greatest, if not the greatest, issue before the American people. By keeping quiet on this question they have been able to draw votes from both the temperance and the whiskey element. The party spirit has been strong enough to keep both sides in line as long as no particular policy had been announced on the liquor question.

But there has been a great weakening in the strength of party spirit in the past few years and it takes more than that to keep the members of the parties in line. From now on the candidate for office regardless of his political affiliations must be an aggressive temperance man or he is going to lose a great many votes from members of his own party. That is the case in Ohio today. The battle in that state has developed into a fight between whiskey and temperance. The Republican candidate for governor is looked upon as representing the liquor interests and the Democrat candidate represents the temperance people. While Ohio is overwhelmingly Republican it looks at this time as though the Democrats might win because of the many anti-liquor Republicans who will not vote for their candidate.

We predict that next republican platform in Kansas will contain a red hot law enforcement plank and it will go through with a whoop. And we will find something on the liquor question in the platforms of the two parties in Missouri at the next election too, and lucky will be the party which gets on the right side of the question.

Why the Wage Earner Should Own His Home

By JACOB W. WILBUR.

Oldest and Largest Vacant Land Developer in the United States.

UNDER the right conditions it is better to be an owner of a house than a renter. A house that is earned brings with it the feeling of safety and citizenship which more than compensates for the care. The man who pays taxes can hold up his head and feel that he has a part in the government of this country. The class of which I speak particularly is the middle class, representing the honest industry of this country, the pie itself, and not the upper nor the under crust.

Compare the cottage with the tenement. Think of the children, the home life of the family, the cottage with its own little piazza and yard and fresh air, and owned by nobody but father and mother. The little ones know and feel the ownership. Then think of the tenement with its feeling of unrest that often causes the anxious expression seen on the faces of the men and women with whom we come face to face in our daily travels. The contented mind, the continual feast, is not there.

This is perhaps the sentimental side, but are we not seeking for happiness? Do not the flowers of paradise bloom in the happy home? Do not these things outweigh the care and responsibility that come with trying to pay for and own one's abiding place? The rent payer may feel free, in a sense, from care, but are we not capable of bearing cares and burdens? Is it not better for us to do so?

Of course there are many who are obliged on account of business, or other reasons, to change their place of residence often. For these it is necessary to pay rent, although we have known some such who have so longed for a home they could call their own that they have invested, knowing they would have to leave it in a few years at most. The man who pays rent gets nothing in return for his money, every dollar of which is gone forever. Not so the man who is paying for his home.

The opportunities to-day for a man to secure a home were not dreamed of 25 years ago. A capitalist then would not sell a house without a large payment down, and a mechanic as a rule could not buy at his terms. To-day the man who is paying $15 a month rent can buy a suburban cottage which would cost him $1,500. The man who is paying $20 a month can buy one which would cost $2,000. The man who pays $30 a month could afford a better one costing $3,000; or, if paying $40, could afford one costing $4,000; and so on. For instance, the man who can pay $25 a month can buy a house worth $2,500. His interest at five per cent. would be $125, and taxes and water rates would be about $45. He would save $130 to pay on the principal. Thus you see that as the interest lessens each year the principal can be paid more rapidly. In 12 or 15 years the home can be paid for. A man should not think of buying a home beyond his means; that is worse than paying rent. Many men have begun by buying a humble home, then when paid for have sold and invested in a better one. It is those who try to live beyond their means who fall by the way.

All of these people can buy, as a rule, new houses which will need few, if any repairs, for several years. Or, if a man chooses, he can buy his own lot and get a builder to build upon it. Then he and his family can have a say as to the planning of it. Some build two family houses, but those can never compare with the single cottage.

The interest taken in this matter of the ownership of homes was never so marked as at the present day, and more people are buying homes than ever before, especially in conservative New England with its centuries of thought and enterprise behind it.

No Poison in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

From Napier, New Zealand Herald: Two years ago the Pharmacy Board of New South Wales, Australia, had an analysis made of all the cough medicines that were sold in that market. Out of the entire list they found only one that they declared was entirely free from all poisons. This exception was Chamberlain's Cough Remedy made by the Chamberlain Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa, U. S. A. The absence of all poisons makes this remedy the safest one that you can have and it is with a feeling of security that any mother can give it to her little ones. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is especially recommended by its makers for coughs, croup, croup and whooping cough. This remedy is for sale by Webb Bros. Mer. Co.

A Disastrous Calamity

It is a disastrous calamity when you lose your health because indigestion and constipation have sapped it away. Prompt relief can be had in Dr. King's New Life Pills. They build up your digestive organs and cure headache, dizziness, vertigo, constipation, etc. Guaranteed at Webb Bros. 25c.

Man's Unreasonableness

is often as great as woman's. But Thomas Austin, Mayor of the "Republicans," of Leavenworth, Ind., was not unreasonable when he refused to allow the doctors to operate on his wife for female trouble. "Instead," he says, "we concluded to try Electric Bitters. My wife was then so sick she could hardly leave her bed and five physicians had failed to relieve her. After taking Electric Bitters she was perfectly cured and can now perform all her household duties." Guaranteed by Webb Bros. Price 50c.

Every Ounce You Eat

Every ounce of food you eat that fails to digest does a round of harm. It turns the entire food into poison. This not only deprives the blood of the necessary tissue-building material, but it saps the strength. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is a perfect digestant. It digests the food regardless of the condition of the stomach. It allows that organ to rest and get strong again. Relieves belching, heart burn, sour stomach, indigestion, palpitation of the heart, etc. Sold by J. K. Schooler.
